PRmoment Awards 2023

Entry Kit

The PRmoment Awards, in association with our headline sponsor Opinium Research, celebrate excellence and recognise and reward outstanding campaigns and exceptional talent in the UK PR and Communications sector.

GENERAL RULES

The PRmoment Awards are open to all UK based agencies and in-house communication teams. To enter, please download the entry form, complete this for each category you wish to enter, and upload your completed forms to the PRmoment Awards website. All entries should include one entry form and a company logo per submission. Please make sure your company logo is of high quality as this will appear on the awards presentation should you be shortlisted. Entrants may submit their own PDF awards entry, instead of using the supplied entry form, however in this case, agencies/individuals doing so should ensure they include information under all the headings listed in the judges' criteria. Not doing so may result in your entry being marked down. Use a selection of documents and URLs to provide context and background to your entry. Each entry allows for up to 3 pieces of supporting information. These can be in Word, Excel, PDF or JPEG format and must be below 5MB each. In addition, judges love to watch video content so please provide links to relevant videos on Vimeo or YouTube and remember to include any necessary passwords in your entry form. Finally, entries should not exceed 1500 words in total.

JUDGING

The PRmoment judges are chosen because of their professional and wide-ranging level of expertise.

Judges will be split into panels and will read and pre-score all allocated entry forms, considering any supporting materials submitted. Judges' pre-scores will be combined and the highest scoring entries will determine the shortlists. Any judge who has a potential conflict of interest will not be allowed to judge that entry. In addition, judges will not be involved in the judging of any categories their organisation has entered and will not have access to any competing entries. Judges have the discretion to move entries between categories if they deem another category more suitable. All judges are required to sign a confidentiality agreement pre-judging.

Following pre-scoring the judges will meet to discuss the highest scoring entries and then agree the winner for each category. The shortlists will be announced on 10 March 2023 and the winners will be announced at an awards ceremony in London on 20th April and Manchester in May 2023 (date TBC).

A GUIDE TO ENTERING

If you're thinking of entering the PRmoment Awards, there are a few things to consider when planning and completing your entry that will give you the best chance of winning.

Follow the entry instructions

Take note of the format your entry needs to be in, the time limits for work entered, how to make payment for your entry, the word count and deadline date.

Pick the right category

You won't have a chance of winning if you enter your work into the wrong category – read the category descriptions and if you are still unsure, give us a call as we're happy to offer advice. Remember that you aren't restricted to entering one category. If your campaign fits into more than one you can enter the same work into as many as you wish but do ensure you tailor each entry form to the specific category criteria.

Read the judging criteria

Ensure your entry covers the judging criteria for the category you are entering and answers all questions for your category. Judges can only mark you on what is included in your entry form so make sure all important information is included and all criteria adhered to. This leads on to the next point...

Stick within the word limit

Judges may mark entries down, or even disqualify them, if they exceed the stated word limit. Please ensure your answers are clear and succinct – don't waffle! Judges love clear, concise entries – use bullet points or infographics to effectively illustrate points.

Link your results to your objectives

If there is one thing that judges hate, it's when outcomes don't bear any relation to the objectives.

Evidence your results

Judges love quantified results and want to see some proof of what you've achieved – include facts and figures, quotes from clients or the media, and even images or infographics.

In terms of which KPIs to choose, these will obviously depend on the specifics of the campaign but AMEC's Evaluation Framework may be a useful reference point.

Get the judges attention

Remember that judges will be reading a large number of entries, so you need to make your entry memorable. Make sure your entry is passionate, tells an interesting story and is backed up with statistics and evidence.

Watch your language!

Always write in clear, concise English, avoid jargon and never copy and paste from existing materials. Do ask someone to check your entry reads well and is free of typos.

Take your time

Winning awards entries take time and effort to write and perfect. Again, we'd highly recommend you get someone to proofread your entry before you submit it.

Get approval

If you are submitting work on behalf of a client, make sure they are happy for you to do so. It would be devastating to spend days writing an entry and then have to withdraw it.

Picture perfect

Attach an image or logo to your entry form. This will be used in the event brochure and presentations should you be shortlisted. Ensure this represents the campaign, product or organisation you are entering.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS & THE CRITERIA THE JUDGES MARK YOUR ENTRIES ON

There is often a feeling of mystery as to how judges score entries for industry awards. At PRmoment we don't think this sense of mystery is necessary or the right way to do things.

So, very simply, here is the criteria that our judges use to score the PRmoment Award entries.

CAMPAIGN AWARDS CRITERIA

The judges will be looking for clear objectives, creative and effective implementation, with tangible and demonstrable results in the campaign award categories. They will also consider the structure, presentation and clarity of each entry. Entries should not exceed 1500 words.

Please consider your entry title carefully as we will use your exact wording on the trophy should you win. Concise and to the point is always best!

Each entry must include information under the following headings. Any entries that do not include information under all of these headings will be marked down.

1. Objective & Budget

Judges will be looking for entries that clearly identify the objectives of the campaign or project

2. Target Audience & Strategy

Judges will look at the quality of the strategy that was implemented considering the budget, objective and target audience stated

3. Implementation & Creativity

The level of creativity employed and quality of implementation when delivering the campaign or project will be assessed. Judges are looking for fresh, innovative thinking, best practice examples, partnership working where appropriate, and resourcefulness

4. Results & Evaluation

Please ensure these relate directly to your objectives. Judges are looking for tangible results and evaluation that can be quantified, qualified and substantiated

5. Why your entry should win

This is your opportunity to tell the judges why you should win.

YOUNG PROFESSIONAL OF THE YEAR AWARD CRITERIA

Judges will be looking for individuals under 30 years old (on 28.02.2023) that can demonstrate an ongoing and sustained commitment to delivering best practice while showing a creative and innovative approach to PR. Judges will also consider the structure, presentation and clarity of each entry. Entries should not exceed 1500 words.

The nominee must be based within the region you are entering.

Each entry must include information under the following headings:

1. Details of the nominee

Please provide a brief outline of the nominee and their role - this will not be scored and is for background information only

2. Recent work example

Entries should provide details of recent work examples to include objectives, implementation, results and evaluation. The quality of the execution of the campaigns will also be judged

3. Recent achievements

Judges are looking to reward recent achievements, the success and achievements of the individual will be scored

4. Why your nominee should win

The jury is looking for a young individual who demonstrates exceptional commitment to delivering the very best in communications, demonstrates best practice and shows an innovative and creative approach to the work they deliver. Entries should detail the contribution they make to their organisation and the wider communications industry.

TEAM / AGENCY AWARDS CRITERIA

Judges will be looking for teams and agencies that can demonstrate an ongoing and sustained commitment to delivering best practice while showing a creative and innovative approach to PR and key company initiatives that are driving the DE&I agenda forward. Judges will also consider the structure, presentation and clarity of each entry. Entries should not exceed 1500 words in total and should focus on work completed between January 1st 2022 to January 27th 2023.

The submitting company / agency must be headquartered or have an operational base within the region you are entering. We welcome multiple entries from agencies with a presence in both the north and the south, but please ensure that you do not double count your revenues for each region. So, if you include revenue towards your northern entry the same revenue cannot be included in your southern entry and vice versa.

Each entry must include information under the following headings:

1. Team / agency objectives

Entries should clearly identify the objectives of the team and/or the agency

2. Recent campaign / work examples

Judges are looking to reward recent work examples to include objectives, implementation, results and evaluation. The quality of the execution of the campaigns will also be judged

3. Recent achievements

The jury wants to reward your achievements. Entries should include details of any recent achievements. The success and achievements of the team will be scored

4. Approach to diversity and inclusion in the workplace

The jury wants to reward key company initiatives that are driving the DE&I agenda forward within the industry. Entrants should be able to demonstrate what impact their initiatives have had. Judges will be looking for evidence of diversity in recruitment, in terms of gender, ethnicity, educational background, disability and LGBTQ+

5. Approach to sustainability and purpose

The jury is looking for details of your organisation's approach to sustainability and purpose

6. Challenges

Entries should contain details of any challenges the team faced and how they overcame these. The team's ability to respond to challenging situations and the resourcefulness they show will be scored

7. Why your team / agency should win

We are looking for a team who demonstrate exceptional commitment to delivering the very best in communications, demonstrate best practice and show an innovative and creative approach to the work they deliver.

JUDGING INSIGHTS FROM A SELECTION OF THE PRMOMENT AWARDS JURY

Here are some top tips from some of the PRmoment Awards judges. These will help you understand what type of things the judges are looking for and what really impresses them.

"A compelling story that resonates with the target audience and showcases the brand's raison d'être is a must. It's about having a simple concept, brilliantly executed. Clear objectives and outcomes together with ROI will go a long way to securing a happy ending. Every story should have one."

Bev Aujla, head of PR & policy, Kelkoo Group

"Standout campaigns are based on a key insight, put through a creative lens and delivered through razor-sharp execution. The outcome will meet the objective. As a judge, if the work stops me in my tracks, makes me pause for thought, raises a smile or more likely, a tinge of envy, then they've probably nailed it."

Andrew Roache, external affairs lead, UK and Ireland, Mondelēz International

"If you can sell your idea in a single sentence, you're probably onto something. I would love to see original ideas that actually have an impact beyond vanity metrics. And ingenious creativity. The kind of creativity that makes you a bit jealous that you didn't think of it yourself."

Caroline Fisher, communications director, ASICS Europe

"I'll be looking for campaigns that effortlessly engage an audience using clever creative and powerful brand storytelling to cut through. Think differently about your entry and make sure it's as engaging and inspiring as your campaign was - clearly demonstrate the impact you made through relevant metrics and show us why and how you got everyone talking!"

Fiona Mills, PR brand communications lead, Greggs

"I am looking for a PR idea that not only feeds a single business need but one that also ladders up to a broader company objective. One-off stunts are great to drive immediate coverage, but what do they say more broadly about your brand and how do they change customer perceptions in a measurable and long-lasting way? Lastly, how does the idea play into the zeitgeist in a meaningful way? With 2020 having been such a seismic year for all of us, how have campaigns and ideas tried to make our lives more enriched and fulfilled as a result?"

Jay Ward, director, Ford of Europe product communications, Ford Motor Company

"The lines between our audiences are less defined than ever before. For me, winners will be thinking way beyond conventional PR coverage, finding innovative and creative ways to engage with multiple stakeholders. I'll be shortlisting those who have created trailblazing content that sets you apart from the rest."

David Macdonald, vice president communications, No7 Beauty Company

"Although it's almost impossible to truly measure the feeling you get when you see a campaign that is brilliant, surprising and unmistakably human, I'm hoping the entries are able to do just that and make me wish I'd come up with the idea myself."

Tobi Ruth Adebekun, communications, International, Snap Inc.

"I will be looking for how you maximised what you had to work with and levelled-up on creativity. If I had sat in your initial pitch, what did you convey that would have made me want to choose your approach over others and what set you apart."

Roopa Ramaiya, VP of communications, Feedzai

Tips and tricks for writing a winning PR award entry

Winning awards is a compelling way to attract and retain clients. Award-winning work turns heads, brings recognition to your team and draws in great people who want to work with you and for you.

Here are our top seven tips for giving your entry the greatest possible chance of a thumbs-up from your peers on the judging panel:

1. Select the right campaigns. Focus on topical, creative, innovative, challenging work with a big, bold idea at its heart. Be honest: is the campaign a winner? Is it stand-out, best in class PR? Are you still excited enough about what you achieved to effectively communicate its brilliance? If not, why would the judges' shortlist the entry?

2. Read the criteria. Follow the criteria. Stick to the rules. Meet the deadline. Don't underestimate how long it takes to pull together an entry. Start early. Factor in time for client approval.

3. Give the job to your best writer. Don't get the agency marketing/new business/director to write the entry if the new business director can't write! Tell the judges a great story. Watch spelling and grammar. Avoid exclamation marks, flannel, waffle, and marketing jargon. Proof, proof and proof again for typos.

4. Create a clear, concise story. Judges have dozens of entries to review for each category. Make sure yours really spells out why it has the X-factor: don't expect them to read between the lines. Include enough market/industry/real world context to help them understand why the campaign was needed. Don't be modest and always give the client team credit.

5. State measurable business and communications objectives. Ensure the results section proves that every objective was met. Include as much evaluation data and evidence of the impact of the campaign on the client business or organisation as possible, from an increase in sales to higher levels of engagement with audiences. Never use AVEs or rely solely on media measurement.

6. Engage judges with the human or emotional angle. There is one in every campaign, if you look hard enough. Who cares whether the campaign was a success? What did it really mean? To whom did it make a difference? Whose lives did it affect? A huge proportion of winning entries elicit some kind of emotional reaction – some stories are even told powerfully enough to prompt tears. Not a good look in the judging chamber, but proof that your work was compelling, and meaningful.

7. Remember the magic formula: clear objectives, matched to proven results, plus great storytelling, equals your best chance of winning. Assuming your campaign was brilliantly conceived and executed in the first place, you'll be well on your way to picking up an armful of shiny gongs.

WINNERS' TESTIMONIALS

"No question about it – winning a coveted PRmoment Award is one of the top industry accolades."

James Herring, CEO, Taylor Herring

"Winning a PRmoment Award is hugely valuable to us as an agency. Tin Man has been lucky enough to win quite a few over the years, both for our campaigns and agency of the year awards. These wins are extremely motivating and exciting for the team as they see their hard work and talent recognised by the industry, but they are also a great new business driver. We often get calls from brands who have attended the awards, seen our name and been impressed with our work."

Mandy Sharp, founder, Tin Man

"The opportunity to get third party endorsement of our work is really important to Red. The standard of work at the PRmoment Awards is very high and the jury is a who's who of UK public relations."

Mike Morgan, chief exec, Red Consultancy

"The range of work at the PRmoment Awards is a brilliant showcase for the industry and we enter them because we know that potential clients see the PRmoment Awards winners and value them."

James Gordon-Macintosh, co-founder, Hope&Glory
